Students receiving federal financial aid must have a high school diploma or GED. If the student is flagged for Financial Aid Verification, students will be asked to provide additional documentation for Federal Financial Aid. (FFA). Additional documentation must be provided in a timely manner. If documentation is not provided in a timely manner, this may result in the ineligibility or loss of FFA. Financial Aid overages are to be used solely for educational purposes. Funds not requested to be disbursed will be returned to the lender. Students, who receive Title IV funds and have an overage available, may receive them through monthly increments or in lump sum. Students are not liable for repayment of unused/unrequested funds. Students charged for a repeated class, a lost book or lost equipment that is covered either in the tuition or the fees, that charge may not be covered under Federal Financial Aid.
